

Tulsa SC vs. FC Dallas Game Preview

After their first defeat of the season against Oklahoma City FC, Tulsa SC (2-1-0) will face off against FC Dallas (1-0-1, 4 points) Saturday night. Tulsa will be hosting Dallas at the Union High School Soccer Complex at 7 pm. The ladies in navy had a few days to train and prepare for their 2 game homestand.

"I am ready to see how the ladies respond after our first loss. OKC and FC Dallas are both very strong this year, so we've got to get ourselves mentally ready for another tough battle." – Mike Schwarz

Saturday's game will be the first game of two versus FC Dallas as the series between the two stands at a 2-1-1 record. Going back to Tulsa's inaugural season, FC Dallas remained unbeaten in their two-game series, but the tables turned last season when Tulsa SC won twice versus the Texas team. The last time they met in 2019, Tulsa beat Dallas 2-nil, which led them to their first-ever Red River Conference Champion Title. After Saturday's game, they will meet again on July 9th in Dallas.

Table Talk

Tulsa SC walked away empty-handed after a hard-fought 90 minutes at Oklahoma City. They remain at the top of the table and aim to add to their advantage against Dallas. Coach Schwarz agreed it was a frustrating result against OKC, but they've moved on and are looking forward to the homestand. The visiting side sits right below with 4 points after their draw against the Texas Spurs Wednesday night. The rest of the table includes OKC FC and South Star FC both with 3 points and the Texas Spurs with 1.

After Saturday's match, Tulsa will stay at home to face OKC Wednesday night to finish their season series against them.
